PERMIT AMENDMENTS

Advocates of Inflation or Bond Issue to Be Given Opportunity to Speak

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(UP)—The house rules committee favorably reported today a rule which brings the soldier bonus issue before the house tomorrow and assures the inflation-bonus bloc a vote on their "green-back" proposal.

The rule provides 10 hours of general debate on the whole controversial issue of how to pay the $2,000,000 bonus.

It enables advocates of inflation, lottery and bond issue methods of payment to offer their proposals for a vote.

The rule "should be fair to all bonus blocs," said Chairman John J. O'Connor, "and while it is a departure from regular rules, the situation is unprecedented."

Under the rule, the Patman inflation bill, or the Cochran-Tydings measure can be offered as substitutes for the Vinson American Legion measure. Teller votes will be taken on the substitutions motions.

The Vinson bill was reported favorably by the ways and means committee, but the rule fails to protect that anti-inflation measure from amendments.

The Cochran-Tydings bill calls for payment of the bonus in negotiable bonds. Its advocates have held the president would consider such a proposal, but was certain to veto either the Vinson or the Patman bills if they go to the White House.

YOUTH LOSES LIFE IN VISALIA BLAZE

VISALIA, Cal., March 18.—(UP)—An unidentified youth was burned to death today in a fire which damaged a hotel here, the second disastrous fire in 24 hours.

The youth's body, burned beyond recognition, was found by firemen after they controlled a blaze which swept the Cozy Rooms hotel. He apparently had been trapped in his room.

Teeth fillings and bits of charred clothing were the only clues authorities had to his identification.

The Exeter Citrus Association packing plant at Exeter was destroyed by fire Sunday, with estimated damage of $100,000.

STATE SENATOR IS HELD UP BY NEGRO

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 18.—(UP)—Police today were seeking a Negro bandit who held State Sen. John B. McColl of Redding at bay with a revolver while he robbed Mrs. Bart Cavanaugh of two watches and $2.50 in cash.

McColl, house guest of the Cavaughns, was awakened by screams of Mrs. Cavanaugh and rushed to her aid. The Negro menaced the senator with the gun while explaining he needed money for his wife and children.

When Mrs. Cavanaugh handed over her purse, the robber fled through the window by which he had entered.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Oakland, Cal., March 18.—(UP)—Throngs blocked by unsettled weather, three army air bases and a department of commerce official probably will take off on a trail-blazing "blind" flight to Honolulu about 3 a. m. tomorrow, it was learned reliably today.

The bill now goes to the lower house where favorable action seemed probable later in the day. However, it carries the emergency clause, and the necessary two-thirds majority may not be forthcoming.

CHICAGO, March 18.—(UP)—A jury was completed in federal court late today to try John Paul Chase, California bootlegger and gambler, on charges of murdering Federal Agent Samuel P. Cowley.

Senator Swing Again Gets Postponement on Townsend Memorial Vote

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 18.—(UP)—Senatorial ire was aroused today when reconsideration of the administration's Townsend plan resolution again was put over until tomorrow.

Request of Sen. Ralph E. Swing to delay a second vote on the measure drew objections from Senators William F. Knowland, Alameda, and Thomas F. Scullan, Sacramento.

"This matter has been before us a week," Senator Knowland said, "and the public certainly is entitled to action on it. I shall oppose any effort tomorrow to again delay it."

Senator Swing said he wished to put it over a day because Sen. Charles F. Reindollar, administration supporter, was absent and he was entitled to full attendance when the Townsend controversy is settled.

To this, Senator Scullan said:

"If I am not at my desk, I don't expect the senate to delay its proceedings on my account. If we have to wait for a full house before voting on all measures, we never will accomplish anything."

"This continued delay is retarding more important legislation. Full house or not, we would take it up today if I had my way."

Since the senate refused last Tuesday to give an unqualified endorsement to the Townsend old age pension plan, as requested by Gov. Frank F. Merriam, administration forces have been trying to switch enough votes to pass the resolution on a reconsideration vote.

Continued postponement indicated to observers that the 21 senators who voted "no" are standing pat. Senator Edgar W. Stow, Santa Barbara who was absent at the first vote, said today he would oppose the measure. The administration claimed last week to have won Stow's support in the controversy.

The petitions reflected the national feelings stirred up for and against the Louisiana "Kingfish" as a result of his fight on the administration and his "share-our-wealth" preaching. Hundreds of names were attached to them.

Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections, to which the petitions were referred, said they contained no new charges and that, in their present status, they could not form the basis for an inquiry.

The documents appeared inspired by the women's committee of Louisiana. That group, led by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, has been trying since the election of Sen. John H. Overton, D., La., in 1932, to have the senate oust the Louisiana senators.

States from which petitions were received were Connecticut, Ohio, Delaware, Missouri, Wisconsin, Washington, Kansas, Maryland, Indiana, Maine, Florida, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Tennessee, Vermont, California, Illinois and Kentucky.

Long suffered a series of defeats last week when the senate twice rejected his proposal for free college educations for the needy—part of his "share-our-wealth" program—and when he was unable to stave off the administration's victory on the prevailing wage fight.

Senate leaders were beset with new difficulties as the work-relief bill entered the second week of its current consideration. They believed, however, that the ranks of the opposition had been broken at the effective date of the tax.

The amendments also provided for elimination of the flour stocks tax.

ARIZONA LAND LAW PASSED BY SENATE

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 18.—(UP)—The Arizona state senate today passed Senator Hubert Smith's alien land tenure bill, modeled after the California law, by a vote of 14 to 5.

Under its terms, aliens ineligible to American citizenship are restrained from all "beneficial use of real property." This includes "share cropping."

The bill now goes to the lower house where favorable action seemed probable later in the day. However, it carries the emergency clause, and the necessary two-thirds majority may not be forthcoming.

CHICAGO, March 18.—(UP)—A jury was completed in federal court late today to try John Paul Chase, California bootlegger and gambler, on charges of murdering Federal Agent Samuel P. Cowley.

PROSPECT, Conn., March 18.—(UP)—The problem of the indigestible "hot dog" has been solved by Lester Green, inventor of the automobile powered by electric eels.

Lester's latest invention is an automaton which, when two nickles are deposited, reveals the meat being weighed, stuffed into a "jacket," toasted and delivered on a warm bun.

As each "dog" is done, the machine barks like a Dachshund and a dab of mustard, in which two soda mini-tablets have been dissolved, accompanies the delivered product.

Danger was increased by backwater from the Mississippi.

Engineers reported that the Mississippi, nearing its crest, was menacing residents along the White river in Tennessee. Red Cross workers assisted in removing 500 families from the area, increasing to 2,600 the number of families now under temporary refuge.

Evacuation was ordered in Reed, Woodrow and Lee counties, while a few miles north, across the Missouri state line, rescue workers concentrated on the area around Cardwell.

Today's weather reports forecast more rain.

The waters, swollen by levee breaks near Cardwell, Mo., spread over lowlands southeast of Paragould, Ark., and rose in the vicinity of Macey, Monette and Black Oak, Ark.

Families were being evacuated in the Black Oak and Monette sectors.

There was danger of inundation at Macey. Monette appeared likely to be surrounded by water from bursting levees in the vicinity of Cardwell.

At Big Lake on the Little river, west of Blythesville, Ark., the river rose toward an expected crest of 19.5 or 20 feet. Approximately 400 workers, who sandbagged the levees, stood guard.

An estimated 100,000 acres had been flooded in the St. Francis basin and at least 10,000 persons driven from their homes.

Hoeppel declined to comment on the charge.

"I don't know a thing about it," he said.

The district attorney's office said Hoeppel would be allowed to come in and surrender on the indictment at his convenience. The son, it was said, would be allowed a reasonable time to answer the charge.

Hoeppel was understood to have engaged Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, fiery antagonist of Sen. Huey P. Long, as his counsel.

Government circles said that France and her allies would move to conclusion of security pacts, with or without Germany.

Confidence was expressed that an eastern European treaty would be concluded soon.

The wish was expressed that France regards the German rearmament action as destroying the basis of French-British proposals for consolidation, Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, would visit Paris before he went to Berlin.

The view prevailed here that Simon would still like to go to Berlin—where he is due to visit Adolf Hitler Sunday—despite the crisis.

The foreign office spokesman said that he expected replies to the French telegram would be received from allied governments within two or three days.

It was pointed out that a course of action was difficult to decide because a group of nations faced a single country.

Over the shock of Hitler's announcement of a compulsory service law, government circles expressed the view that there was no immediate danger to peace but that Germany's gesture increased tension for collective security.

It is hoped that the replies to the telegrams will be received by Wednesday, when the cabinet is to meet.

Wednesday afternoon there is to be an important debate in the senate on the two-year military service law.

The administration opposes the measure.

TWO ARE KILLED IN FALL FROM PLANE

SPokane, Wash., March 18.—(UP)—A coroner's inquest was called today over the bodies of Robert Heyer, 23, and Esther Goldback, 22, who were thrown from an airplane at an altitude of about 2000 feet near Medical Lake Sunday.

Joseph E. Miller, 37, pilot of the plane, said the safety belt holding the couple broke when the ship was forced into a side slip in an air pocket.

Other passengers, Irene Heyer, sister of one of the victims, and Arnold Ackerlund, corroborated Miller's story.

Bodies of the dead couple were found not far from each other in a plowed field.

He returned from Washington to take charge of the state's fight on an injunction suit brought by the telephone company to stop reduction of rates, ordered by the Louisiana public service commission.

More Than 100,000 Acres in Northeastern Arkansas Are Inundated

By UNITED PRESS

FLOOD WATERS still threaten lowlands along Mississippi river tributaries today. The crest of the flood shifted over the weekend, and waters receding from southern Missouri spread across more than 100,000 acres in northeastern Arkansas.

Danger was increased by backwater from the Mississippi.

Engineers reported that the Mississippi, nearing its crest, was menacing residents along the White river in Tennessee. Red Cross workers assisted in removing 500 families from the area, increasing to 2,600 the number of families now under temporary refuge.

to convey to the German government their protest against the announcement made by the latter on the 16th of March, of a decision to adopt conscription and increase the peace basis of the German army to 36 divisions.

"Following the announcement regarding the German air force, such a declaration is a further example of unilateral action which, apart from the issue of principle, is calculated seriously to increase the uneasiness of Europe.

"The proposal for an Anglo-German meeting arose out of the terms of an Anglo-French communique of the 3rd February and the German reply of 14th February, supplemented by further communications between his Majesty's government and the German government.

Attention Called

"His Majesty's government consider it necessary to call specific attention of the German government to the effect of those documents.

"A London communique of 2nd February, while noting that armaments limited by treaty could not be modified by unilateral action, declared that the British and French governments favored a general settlement, freely negotiated between Germany and the other powers which would make provisions for the organization of security in Europe on the lines indicated therein, and would simultaneously establish agreements about armaments which, in the case of Germany, would replace the relevant provisions of part V of the treaty of Versailles.

"The communique went on to state that it would be a part of the general settlement which it contemplated that Germany would resume her active membership in the League of Nations, and proceeded to sketch out terms of an air pact between the Locarno treaty powers to operate as a deterrent to aggression and ensure immunity from sudden attacks from the air.

"The German government's reply, 10 days later, welcomed the spirit of friendly confidence, which the Anglo-French communique expressed, and undertook that the German government would submit to an exhaustive examination the

BEFORE VOTERS

Mrs. Neal Beisel, state vice-president of the P.T.A., today announced her candidacy for the board of education.

P.T.A. LEADER CANDIDATE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Announcing her belief that there should be two women members of the board of education, Mrs. Neal Beisel, 1525 Durant street, active leader of Parent-Teacher Association work and now a vice-president of the state P.T.A., today declared herself a candidate for election to the local board.

She is the second woman candidate in the field. Dr. Margarete Baker, who is completing her first term on the board, having already announced her candidacy for re-election.

"I believe," said Mrs. Beisel in announcing her candidacy, "that educators and parents should join together in planning constructively for our youth. I feel that two women members on the board of education will assure a close contact between the home and the school, and provide a well-adjusted viewpoint in local problems. It is for these reasons that I am announcing myself as a candidate for the board of education.

"Our family residence has been in Santa Ana for the past 32 years, and my four sons and myself all are graduates of the local schools. I feel that this experience has given me a comprehensive knowledge of both the needs and the program of our schools.

"During the past ten years I have been closely identified with civic and fraternal organizations which have taken me into service throughout the state. I believe that I have gained a cross-section viewpoint of human nature and needs, which will be of value in building a constructive program in education for Santa Ana.

"I firmly believe that education is the first business of the state, as declared in the state constitution; that education should be free to all, from kindergarten through college; and that the present constitutional guarantees for the support of education should be maintained.

Mrs. Beisel said she had renewed her education by re-entering high school as a full-time student, and graduated in 1925 in the class with her eldest son. She continued her education by a full-time program in junior college, graduating in 1928, cum laude, followed by a post-graduate year in 1932, majoring in pre-legal requirements. She is now reading law.

Mrs. Beisel is a past worthy matron of Hermosa chapter, O. E. S., having been matron in 1930. She is a past worthy high priestess of Damascus shrine, which she headed in 1931. She is a member of the state board of managers of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, and is now a state vice-president.

This has throughout been the purpose of his majesty's government's policy, and upon its achievement they have concentrated all their efforts at Geneva and elsewhere. But the attainment of a comprehensive agreement which by common consent would take the place of the treaty provisions cannot be facilitated by putting forward, as decision already arrived at, strength for military effectiveness greatly exceeding any before suggested—strengths, moreover, which, if maintained unaltered, must make more difficult if impossible the agreement of other powers vitally concerned.

His majesty's government are more unwilling to abandon any opportunity which the arranged visit might afford of promoting a general understanding, but in the new circumstances, and before undertaking it, they feel bound to call attention of the German government to the above considerations, and they wish to be assured that the German government still desire the visit to take place with the scope and for the purposes previously agreed upon as set out in paragraph four above."

AMERICAN OFFICIALS MEET IN CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(UPI)—Administration officials met hurriedly today to begin shaping American policy and attitude toward the German government's decision to scrap the Versailles treaty and to re-arm.

It was expected that the question would be carried to the White House today by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large and President Roosevelt's personal observer in Europe.

Davis arrived from New York today and immediately conferred with Hull.

Later he was closeted with other state department officials, including U. Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the division of western European affairs.

Neither Hull nor Davis

would discuss their conference, although it was admitted that the whole range of the week-end developments in Europe had been

forces of the reich.

The three commanders of the respective arms probably will be Karl Fritsch, Admiral Erich Raeder and Gen. Hermann Goering.

Over them, as chief of staff, will be Gen. Werner von Blomberg, supreme commander under Hitler of all the reich's fighting forces.

Exhaustive "research" with fighting planes, heavy artillery, tanks and submarines already has been carried out with the cooperation of certain neutral foreign powers, the United Press was informed.

Reliable sources said that the eventual German army will average between 500,000 and 600,000 and may reach the last figure. The service period for conscripts will be one year's intensive training.

Germany's elaborate "defense laws" are now being worked out by various military leaders in conjunction with high officials of the foreign ministry. The laws will regulate all questions of conscription, distribution of forces, erection of barracks and creation of physical defenses.

A corollary to this measure, but not a part of it, will be the restatement of regulations affecting the storm troops and the "SS," Hitler's picked guards, and the various political forces of the reich.

This defense law, which was foisted in one paragraph of Saturday's proclamation, may not be made public or effective for several weeks.

The demilitarized zone of the Rhineland will be maintained in violation, it was understood, since this is guaranteed under the pact of Locarno.

TALKS AS DOCTORS OPERATE ON HEART

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—(UPI)—Henry Williams, 28, was in a serious condition today after lying on an operating table at University of California hospital here and talking to surgeons while they performed a delicate operation on his heart, attendants announced today.

Williams was taken to the hospital with an inflammation of the sheath covering his heart. A "pinch," which sometimes causes strangulation sufficient to stop the organ, was developing, physicians said.

The patient was conscious while surgeons removed parts of four ribs and part of his breast bone before cutting away portions of the heart covering in a two-hour operation.

HAT IN RING

E. H. Layton, below, Santa Ana business man today made formal announcement of his candidacy for city councilman from the fourth ward.

LAYTON TELLS PLATFORM FOR COUNCIL RACE

Formal public announcement of his candidacy for city councilman from the fourth ward was made today by E. H. Layton. The announcement follows:

"Careful study of the situation convinces me that an opportunity is presented to render a civic service under conditions that would make such service an experience that could contain many things to compensate for the expenditure of time and receiving of hard knocks that would be involved."

"My qualifications consist, mainly of the knowledge of our city requirements attained through many years of residence and business experience here and the ability to give and take in collaboration with fellow men. Continuously in business and a tax payer for the last 12 years, I have resided here most of the time for the last 25 years."

"It would be folly for me to advance promises as to what I would do if elected. Such problems as could not be obviated by anticipation would have to be met as they presented themselves. Among other things for which I would strive, however, would be:

"The utmost economy and the application of business principles in the conduct of city affairs.

"The alleviation of the condition of our unemployed and underprivileged people whenever and wherever at all possible.

"The very rigid enforcement of whatever restrictive liquor laws we have, especially where they affect our younger people.

"Also I am convinced that, whether the Townsend or some other plan, annuities must be provided, and very soon, for our older people of a sufficient amount to insure them an American standard of living."

Fear contracts nerves, heart, mind and soul; it shrinks and withers the entire personality. If you would know strength and joy, you must eliminate craven fear from your life.

You cannot accomplish this by your own strength. Try as you may, you will tremble before what might happen within and without you.

The spirit of power and of poise is increasing intimacy with the God of your life. With Him by your side, you can pass triumphantly through hardships, doubts, and sorrow.

FOLLOWERS OF JESUS SUFFER FOR BELIEVING OBLIGATIONS OF BELONGING TO CHURCH IMPRESSED UPON CHRISTIANS BY REV. KELLY

Speaking yesterday morning at the United Presbyterian church, the Rev. Albert Eakin Kelly delivered the first in a series of pre-Easter Studies of the Christian Life and Experience from the text, Joshua 22: 22-24. His theme was "Measuring Up to Profession." The sermon in part was as follows:

'GOLDEN RULE' TRIAL FORCED BY DEPRESSION

"Out from this impressive scene at Shechem, long ago in the life of Israel and from the address of the aged Joshua to his people comes to the professing Christian of now the message of 'three oughts.' The first is, 'We ought to measure up to our profession.' A public profession is a declaration of choice. It is so in the business world. Business advertises 'bargains every day with us' or 'dollar for dollar here,' or 'we give you your money's worth.' Business has chosen so to conduct itself and publicly declares the same.

"It is so in the world of fraternal orders, or of service clubs. The members enter the organization, wears its insignia, announces to the world that he has chosen to abide by its rules and live according to its spirit.

"It is quite so in the field of the Christian religion and the Christian church. The Christian takes a public stand before the official board, the congregation, and the world, declaring that he has accepted the Lord Jesus as a personal Saviour, and that he dedicates his powers to Christian service through the church. He affirms that he will be loyal to the church and faithful in the performance of duty as assigned him.

"The reason for this apparent failure," she said, "is to be found in the fact that Christianity as interpreted by the modern liberal has never been tried. It is a new thing to identify Christianity with the moral teachings of its founder. At its inception, Christianity was principally a hope of the Parousia—the second coming of the Messiah and the establishment of the New Jerusalem, let down from the clouds. Before this hope had failed, Christianity was sweeping into a gigantic synthesis all the primitive elements of the Mystery Cults and was fast becoming a mystic cult, itself, concerned with dispensing salvation through blood baths and sacrificial feasts.

"Next, becoming identified with the organization of the decadent Roman empire, it passed into a powerful temporal organization, which secured salvation from Hell for its loyal members by its supernatural power.

"The Protestant Reformation broke up this power by identifying large sections of Christianity with nationalistic governments and this break up continued until, in democracies, Christianity became identified with a purely personal faith, an attitude, either of belief or of experience."

"But never, through all these centuries, did Christianity become identified with the Golden Rule and the gospel of Universal Brotherhood.

"There is a second 'ought.' It is, 'we ought to put away the strange gods that are among us.'

"Joshua knew that Israel had strange gods. He knew that they had idols, teraphim, and the ornaments of pagan worship. He knew that the possession of such would mean their lapsing into heathen worship. He summoned his people to a complete riddance of everything that would hinder the full-hearted service of God.

"The word of Jesus was, in effect, that 'no man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, fit for the kingdom of God, or ye cannot serve God and mammon.' Paul urged a similar course—"no soldier on service entangles himself in the affairs of this life that he may please him who has enrolled him as a soldier."

"God knows that if there is one germ of sin left in the life there is danger of serious infection; that if there is one idol left standing in the shrine of a man's heart there is danger, that God will all too soon not be worshipped, that we will not measure up to our profession of loyalty to Him."

"They hate Christ without a cause. He sought only their welfare, and when they nailed Him to the cross His suffering and death was for their eternal good. This Savior has conquered over death and hell and is on our side in all suffering and affliction. He lives and rules to all eternity. His sacrifice is all-sufficient. Whosoever accepts Christ and His sacrifice in true faith will be blessed by Him forever."

FISH PRESERVE CONFERENCE IS DISCUSSION SET HELD BY JUNIOR COLLEGE GROUP FOR TOMORROW

NORTH BEACH, March 18.—Fishing problems of the Orange County coast line and consideration of effects of the San Diego exposition will occupy the attention of members of the Orange County Coast association at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at the San Clemente golf clubhouse.

Tom Hurley, former supervisor of San Diego county, will be the principal speaker, it was announced, and will outline plans for the world fair. Hurley will also meet with the advertising committee of the coast group to make plans for selling Orange county to fair visitors.

A report of efforts to secure a game fish preserve along the county coast line will be made by members of the special committee appointed by President Dan Mulherron to consider the problem.

The committee consists of Mayor A. T. Smith, San Clemente; Mayor Frank Champion, Laguna Beach; Tom Talbert, Huntington Beach; Lew Wallace, Newport Beach; Dr. C. G. Huston, Costa Mesa; Leslie F. Kimmel, Laguna Beach and Harry Welch, Balboa.

Dinner, which will be served at the clubhouse at 6:30 o'clock, will be prepared by the San Clemente Woman's club.

Hold Last Rites For Mrs. Nelson

FULLERTON, March 18.—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary D. Nelson, 28, who died at her home at 403 East Amerige, Fullerton Saturday morning, were held at the Gulick mortuary in Belvedere Gardens this afternoon.

Mrs. Nelson had resided in Fullerton two weeks. She is survived by her husband, employed in the Sears-Roebuck store, and her mother, Mrs. C. E. Platt of Los Angeles. The remains were sent to the Belvedere Gardens mortuary by McAuley and Sutters, Fullerton morticians.

"A profession is the assumption of the burden of an 'ought.' An obligation rests at once upon the man who professes to be this or that, and do this or that. Business must—note the obligation—live up to its advertisements.

When we join some fraternal or service order or club we have resting upon us the burden of such obligation. The duty of keeping the pledge is incumbent.

"The 'ought' is laid upon us when we stand in the presence of God and His people and declare 'we will serve the Lord and to His voice we will harken.' We find ourselves under the obligations of the solemn covenant we have made with God. We have said that we would be and do. We ought to measure up to our profession.

"Such an 'ought' expresses the opinion of honest men, i.e., the mind of an honest God. Both the world of men and God himself despise the hypocrite; they scorn the lie in action. They expect a man to pay his pledge and to do what he vows to do.

"There is a second 'ought.' It is, 'we ought to put away the strange gods that are among us.'

Joshua knew that Israel had strange gods. He knew that they had idols, teraphim, and the ornaments of pagan worship. He knew that the possession of such would mean their lapsing into heathen worship. He summoned his people to a complete riddance of everything that would hinder the full-hearted service of God.

"But now, under the driving force of economic law, men are beginning to see that nothing short of universal fraternal cooperation is going to secure any degree of personal or national security and cooperation. At last, after the passing of two thousand years of false starts and short-circuiting experiments business, governments, and even the church itself, are being forced to the realization that Christianity has got to be tried!

"It is a hard lesson, and still railed against as 'communism' and 'heresy' by generous sections of our commonwealth. Thus, a professor of economics from Harvard, on the coast this winter, insisted in public addresses that Jesus never taught the 'Brotherhood of Man.'

"We are reminded of the province in Southern France, in the days of the splendor and power of the Papacy, that was demolished and depopulated because the intellectual aristocracy insisted that Jesus was a humble and lowly savior and that pomp and show were unbecoming in his earthly representatives."

In diagnosing the ills of the present economic order, the speaker likened the stream of credit to water flowing in a river-bed in which whirlpools developed, which gradually sucked in more and more of the water in the river, until the stream-bed was almost dry and the water stood in great, stagnant pools. The system of interest, she insisted, created these whirlpools in the credit stream, for every dollar that went out, and a dollar and five, six, seven or ten cents must come back.

"One of the chief reasons for the collapse of the Roman Empire," she declared, "was this same misuse of the inflation of credit which we experienced in the boom years. The principle reason why our depression is not to be so complete, so devastating or so prolonged as the Dark Ages, is the development, in our century, of economics. We at least know what the matter is, as no one in the Roman world ever could. And we know what to do about it. If we can educate a generation of world-citizens, dedicated to the common good, and not to getting rich off one another."

The lesson-sermon included these words of Isaiah: "Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not; behold, your God will come with vengeance; even God will avenge; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert."

Among the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were the statements: "Christian Science brings to the body the sunlight of truth, which invigorates and purifies . . . The effect of this science is to stir the human mind to a change of base, on which it may yield to the harmony of the divine Mind."

NEW RULES FOR BRIDGE PLAYERS ARE EXPLAINED

NEW YORK, March 18.—Drastic reductions in penalties were made in a revised international code of rules for contract bridge, promulgated today to take effect on April 1.

Another factor making the game less expensive is reduction of the vulnerable grand slam bonus from 2250 to 1500 and the not-vulnerable bonus of 1500 to 1000.

Changes are the result of efforts of the Whist Club of New York and the famous Portland club of London to standardize bridge rules wherever the game is played.

Doubled and not vulnerable undertricks are penalized 100 points for the first trick and 200 for each subsequent trick. Vulnerable and undoubled undertricks are penalized 100 points each. A vulnerable double set costs 200 for the first trick and 300 for each successive trick. The penalty of 50 points for each undoubled not vulnerable undertrick is retained.

Trick Count Changed

The no trump trick count is changed from an alternating 20-40 count, to 40 for the first trick and 30 for each succeeding trick. This will enable a game to be made by three contracts for one

Laws Simplified

The code is promulgated by the Whist Club of New York, the Portland Club of London and the Commission Francaise de Bridge with the approval of a committee of representatives of outstanding American bridge organizations.

The laws of the game, that is the portion of the code dealing with violations of the rules, have been simplified and a number of changes made.

Penalties of passes and bids out of turn involving new deals are abolished.

Insufficient Bid

Under the new code the penalty for a pass out of turn and before the first legal bid is that the offender must pass when it is in his turn to bid. For a bid out of turn the partner of the offender is barred from the rest of the auction.

An insufficient bid cannot be corrected until and unless the non-offending side calls attention to it and then if the offender makes his bid sufficient with the minimum number of tricks required in the suit he first mentioned, his partner is barred from the bidding for one round. If the offender names another suit in making his bid sufficient his partner is barred from the rest of the auction.

Dummy is given more rights. He can draw attention to any irregularity by an adversary, such as a revoke, and can ask the declarer if he knows his rights.

For looking at quitted trick the penalty is 50 points. If one looks at his cards during the deal the non-offending side can demand a new deal.

no trump, which is impossible now.

Under the present code, promulgated November 1, 1932, sets are on a progressive basis. The first doubled not vulnerable undertrick is 100 and each successive undertrick is 50 points more than the one preceding it. Vulnerable undertricks are twice not vulnerable. Doubled undertricks are twice vulnerable undoubled undertricks.

The new code makes calculations easier. In the region of stratospheric sets the reduction in penalties is extremely marked.

Greatest Set

For instance, under the present code the greatest set possible, failure to take a trick at a grand slam vulnerable, redoubled contact, would cost 20,800 points. Under the new code the greatest possible set is 7600 points.

Sets when doubled and vulnerable for the first five tricks compare as follows under the codes:

Number of

Tricks Set Old Code New Code

1 200 200

2 500 500

3 900 800

4 1400 1100

5 2000 1400

The greatest change is making a set when vulnerable and undoubled cost only 100 per trick in contrast to the progressive radio. Undoubled vulnerable sets for the first five undertricks compare as follows:

Tricks Set Old Code New Code

1 100 100

2 250 200

3 450 300

4 700 400

5 1000 500

GRAYSON

SARASOTA, Fla., March 16.—quired of an athlete fielding a ball in deep short. He throws from any position, and gets as much on the ball throwing it underhanded as he does overhanded. The strength and accuracy of his arm leaves him without a peer in re-laying a ball from the outfield.

What makes Cronin a quarter-million-dollar player-manager?

Watching the Red Sox train not far from the circus wintering grounds here, and chatting with the players, you quickly learn to appreciate the aggressive Cronin's worth.

While "Bucky" Harris was popular, all hands are pleased at the gigantic sale that reversed the positions of the pair who became famous as boy managers.

There was considerable joyriding on the Boston club last season. This Cronin has ended. The San Francisco Irishman is a strict disciplinarian, but is so likable that nobody objects. He asks no player to do what he doesn't do himself. He observes training rules to the letter.

"A manager has to be an example," explains Cronin. "He doesn't know where his players are at all times, but you can bet that they know where he is."

Everybody in the Boston party expects Cronin to have his biggest year. He always was at his best at Fenway park, playing phenomenal ball at shortstop and bounces off the short left field wall.

SLOW INFIELD TO AID JOE

Al Schacht, veteran comedian-coach who accompanied Cronin from the Senators to the Red Sox, insists that the difference in the Griffith Stadium and Fenway park infields will work greatly to the advantage of Cronin. The Washington infield is hard, and consequently very speedy. Balls do not hop as fast in Boston, which will enable Cronin to get his good-sized hands on more of them.

Cronin trained faithfully all winter, intent on regaining his position as baseball's foremost shortstop.

He was adjudged the most valuable player in the American league after hitting .346 for the Senators in 1930. He hit .306 in '31, .318 in '32, .309 in '33, and .284 last season. He insists that he would have hit .300 in '34 had he not suffered a broken wrist on Labor Day.

Cronin corrected his only fielding weakness two years ago. It was the handling of balls hit slowly and straight at him. He was inclined to rush in rapidly, and to hurry the throw.

Some shortstops can go one way and not the other. Cronin moves a long way in each direction.

Cronin has the rifle arm re-

WALTON LEAGUE TO STUDY CABIN SITES IN JAPAN

President Hugh Harrison of the Santa Ana Chapter Izaak Walton League of America has called a special meeting for 7:30 o'clock, Wednesday evening, March 20. Additional officers are to be elected and a committee appointed to investigate three sites available for the erection of a cabin, to be a meeting place for the Waltons and their families. This committee will report at the next regular meeting of the league.

It is planned to create a game bird refuge on the grounds. A breeding place for quail and partridge and ponds where ducks and geese may feed and rest unmolested.

Sweet and blue-rock traps and a rifle range are to be provided. Casting pools where nimrods may practice casting also are planned, the latter may be stocked with fish.

Sportsmen of Tustin, Garden Grove and Newport Beach are becoming interested and promise their support of the Santa Ana body in this undertaking. Anyone interested whether a member or not is urged to attend this meeting.

BRUINS REPORT FOR LONG SPRING DRILL

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—(UP)—Preparing to meet the most difficult schedule in University of California at Los Angeles history, Coach William H. Spaulding launched a five-to-seven week spring football practice here today with between 36 and 50 candidates expected to report.

BEAVER TRIO ON S. C. ALL-OPPONENT TEAM

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—University of Southern California's Pacific Coast conference championship basketball players think so well of Oregon State college, their rival in the recent championship play-off in Corvallis, that they today placed three Beavers on their conference all-opponents team.

George Hibbard and Wally Palmberg, Oregon State forwards, were unanimous choices for the Trojans' all-opponents team, while Dick Lyman, another O. S. C. star, was voted a position at guard. "Dinty" Moore, stellar sophomore guard at Stanford, was a unanimous choice on S. C.'s all-rival team along with Hibbard and Palmberg. Dave Meek of the University of California at Berkeley was voted the center position after a close race with Keith Topping of Stanford and Earl Conkling of O. S. C. The Southern Californians did not attempt to select a second team.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind the News

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon
ACCOMMODATIONS

A readjustment of political bedfellows is quietly taking place as a result of the radio brawl.

The ethereal miasma of Huey Long and Father Coughlin is being broken up. This does not necessarily mean a divorce, but rather separation. In fact, announcements were never officially sent out by these two. To be meticulously accurate, you would say nothing deeper than a broken engagement actually is involved.

A more complete way to express it probably would be to suggest that hereafter you will find Father Coughlin with the New Dealers more often than against them. In the tight places and in the end (1936), he will be what the White House will call "safe."

At least this is the understanding which the foremost New Dealers now have, and they are acting accordingly. There will be no more attacks on Coughlin.

SHOVES

As for Huey, he is being shoved out on the floor. He may be seen with Coughlin now and then, but his shadow never will darken the White House door.

Neither will the shadows of General Johnson and Bernard Baruch, for a while. Administration spokesmen are preparing to make it clear to the country that Baruch has favored only one of all the things that the New Deal did—the economy act. As this act has been fairly well washed out by more recent government pay increases, etc., the implication is going to be left with the country that so has Baruch. He has not been very conspicuous around here lately. The last time he was at the White House, a few weeks ago, he wanted the president to buy some tin, but nothing was done about it. Also the Baruch war policy mobilization plan, which was hot around the White House a few months ago, now is gathering icicles in the presidential cooler.

FINIS

There is no need to jump to the conclusion that Johnson is in bad with the White House. Indeed, he may have received a private pat on the back for good work done.

The general, however, is considered a hasty fellow who sometimes gets undue exhilaration from his imagination and elsewhere, and releases it in extraordinary speeches. It would be dangerous for him to appear as a perpetual White House spokesman, because no one can be sure what he will decide to say next. He is strictly on his own now.

This realignment should leave everyone happy. Father Coughlin undoubtedly will find it more congenial and less hazardous for his purposes to work with the administration instead of Huey. The White House will be glad to wipe out any suspicions concerning Baruch which may have been erroneously created by Long and Coughlin.

OBSCURITY?

Secretary Perkins is having her private troubles these days trying to keep control over labor in her department. She is working to get the Wagner labor board proposal changed so as to place the board under her department, using her field agents to investigate labor disputes. Also she is trying to get the social security legislation placed under her. Congressmen want an independent tribunal to administer unemployment insurance, etc.

Unless Secretary Perkins wins one or both of these things, her department will slide into obscurity.

THREAT

Ambassador Caffery in Cuba still is living under constant threats against his life, according to private reports to the state department. The threats are not coming from cranks but sources which the Cuban government has reason to fear—the A. B. C. and Autentico elements. They are engaged in a terror campaign, the results of which are now again reaching front page proportions. Caffery never leaves the embassy these days without a bodyguard of five Cuban soldiers.

PREPARATIONS

The naval admirals are continually making preparations far in advance of the termination of the naval treaty (December next year). They are working on a new battleship replacement program so they will be ready to act quickly when the time comes. The state department is not being let in on it, since our diplomats have been telling the world that we will continue to adhere to the treaty until someone starts building beyond it.

NOTES

Few know that Adolf Hitler has made a fortune out of his book "My Struggle," written when he was slinging a paint brush over Munich houses and feeling the urge of political ambition. Official figures show that 1,890,000 copies have been sold. It has been translated into fourteen languages.

Crowds have been coming to see the five million fingerprints on file in the justice department bureau in such large numbers that visiting hours have been established.

SHOVES

As for Huey, he is being shoved out on the floor. He may be seen with Coughlin now and then, but his shadow never will darken the White House door.

Neither will the shadows of General Johnson and Bernard Baruch, for a while. Administration spokesmen are preparing to make it clear to the country that Baruch has favored only one of all the things that the New Deal did—the economy act. As this act has been fairly well washed out by more recent government pay increases, etc., the implication is going to be left with the country that so has Baruch. He has not been very conspicuous around here lately. The last time he was at the White House, a few weeks ago, he wanted the president to buy some tin, but nothing was done about it. Also the Baruch war policy mobilization plan, which was hot around the White House a few months ago, now is gathering icicles in the presidential cooler.

JOKERS

Some utility circles are annoyed at the super-severousness of the groups which went to the trouble of drafting form letters and telegrams for their security holders to send to congress. New York scouts report that floods of identical communications have become very irritating to the boys on Capitol Hill and may jeopardize the success of the whole barrage.

One big company is especially irked. It presented its views of the situation to its security holders fluently enough but took special pains not to suggest a specific form of protest and even refrained from urging them to squawk.

All it said was, "You may wish to telegraph or write to your senators and congressmen." Note its carefully planned restraint turns out to have been futile.

"The industry had plenty of legitimate trumps to play without slipping that kind of joker into the deck. Form letters to congress are as smart as putting red pepper has jolted all overconfidence out on the peanuts you feed to an elephant."

INSOMNIA

The aspect of the whole business which makes power leaders maddest is the repeated insistence by New Dealers from FDR down that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill won't hurt the operating companies.

The bill would make common carriers of the operating units and subject them completely to the federal power commission as to rates and management. These features of the measure have hardly been mentioned in public but they're very much present. Conservatives heatedly inquire whether dice so loaded could ever fall to the security holder's advantage.

Also they crave to know just how the holding companies are supposed to liquidate immense volumes of the securities of their subsidiaries without smashing the daylight out of their market value. That's a possibility which gives insurance companies and other investing institutions insomnia.

MORAL

Believe it or not, utility interests were quite gratified by the Chattanooga vote in favor of a municipal distributing plant to compete with Tennessee Electric Power. The ayes had it by a margin of only a little over 2 to 1 as against the 17 to 1 result in Memphis—in the teeth of a strenuous TVA publicity campaign to offset the psychological effect of Judge Grubb's adverse decision.

This difference plus the fact that Chattanooga business men opposed the TVA project where those in Memphis had supported it—makes the utilities feel almost entitled to claim a moral victory.

There's something about a Chesterfield —

There's one thing I especially like about Chesterfields—entirely aside from the fact that it's a milder cigarette—and I've heard a number of people say the same thing ... While I'm smoking Chesterfield I never get little crumbs of tobacco in my mouth — the tobacco doesn't spill out and that adds a lot to my pleasure of smoking them ... I notice more and more of my friends smoke Chesterfields.

Decision to stage the popular western event again this year followed assurance received by Baker from many of the world's greatest riders, bulldoggers, lariat wielders, trick riders, cow wranglers and bronco busters from all parts of the western United States, Canada, Mexico and South America that they would participate.

Anderson, who has held the position as rodeo director for the Baker ranch events since their inception, has broadcast a message to cowboys throughout the southwest to begin rounding up the wildest broncos and steers on the range and prepare to ship them to the Rose Bowl for the thrilling contests.

FEBRUARY GRAHAM SALES SHOW GAIN

Reflecting the aggressive pace set by the automobile industry this year, the Graham-Paige Motor Corporation has just completed the biggest February in six years and the biggest month in four years. It was announced by William E. Otis Jr., dealer at Fifth and Birch streets.

Orders for the month called for 6368 cars which brought the year's total to 8069 as of February 28.

The company reported unfilled orders as 2888 after shipping 3485 cars during February. Production for the month was 3717 cars. It was reported that Graham is scheduling a March production of 4500 cars.

A readjustment of political bedfellows is quietly taking place as a result of the radio brawl.

The ethereal miasma of Huey Long and Father Coughlin is being broken up. This does not necessarily mean a divorce, but rather separation. In fact, announcements were never officially sent out by these two. To be meticulously accurate, you would say nothing deeper than a broken engagement actually is involved.

A more complete way to express it probably would be to suggest that hereafter you will find Father Coughlin with the New Dealers more often than against them. In the tight places and in the end (1936), he will be what the White House will call "safe."

At least this is the understanding which the foremost New Dealers now have, and they are acting accordingly. There will be no more attacks on Coughlin.

SHOVES

As for Huey, he is being shoved out on the floor. He may be seen with Coughlin now and then, but his shadow never will darken the White House door.

Neither will the shadows of General Johnson and Bernard Baruch, for a while. Administration spokesmen are preparing to make it clear to the country that Baruch has favored only one of all the things that the New Deal did—the economy act. As this act has been fairly well washed out by more recent government pay increases, etc., the implication is going to be left with the country that so has Baruch. He has not been very conspicuous around here lately. The last time he was at the White House, a few weeks ago, he wanted the president to buy some tin, but nothing was done about it. Also the Baruch war policy mobilization plan, which was hot around the White House a few months ago, now is gathering icicles in the presidential cooler.

JOKERS

Some utility circles are annoyed at the super-severousness of the groups which went to the trouble of drafting form letters and telegrams for their security holders fluently enough but took special pains not to suggest a specific form of protest and even refrained from urging them to squawk.

All it said was, "You may wish to telegraph or write to your senators and congressmen." Note its carefully planned restraint turns out to have been futile.

"The industry had plenty of legitimate trumps to play without slipping that kind of joker into the deck. Form letters to congress are as smart as putting red pepper

A dinner at 6:30 o'clock, in charge of Mrs. E. Eustis, will precede the program. All members and their wives are invited.

FARM CENTER TO HEAR SUPERVISOR

TUSTIN, March 18.—"Storm Water Control" will be the subject of a talk to be given by N. E. Saturday evening, with the church completely filled with young people, "No civilization long outlasts the demise of its religious faith. Men are damned who fail to believe what Jesus Christ taught," the speaker declared in emphasizing the sovereignty of character.

"Our Christ Supreme" was the theme of the address given by Howard L. Brown, who also was in charge of the song service. R. W. Graybill, of Fullerton, gave two marimba-xylophone solos, "Peace, Be Still" and "Lead Me Gently Home." The Scripture lesson was read by Perry Grout and prayer was offered by the Rev. L. I. This year the organization will dedicate the tree and place the marker at the base of the tree in a ceremony planned for 2:30 o'clock the afternoon of March 25.

Mrs. Matilda Lemon, of the Santa Ana chapter of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, today announced plans for the dedication ceremonies.

The speaker of the day will be Mrs. Gladys E. Noce, of San Francisco, grand president of the Na-

GROWD ENJOYS CONCERT BY S. A. SYMPHONY

By Mrs. Russell Rowland

The Santa Ana Symphony Orchestra, under the able direction of Elwood Bear, played to a large, responsive audience in the First Methodist Church yesterday afternoon. In a program of classic and romantic music, Conductor Bear revealed a genuine understanding of each composer, and the orchestra proved itself to be a live and growing musical society, capable of fine things.

The Haydn Symphony in D Major was especially well performed. The subtleties and nuances of each phrase were taken into account and welded into a whole that was gratifying. Each movement was imbued with its own individual feeling, the contrasts in shading unusually well handled, and the orchestra seem to be under perfect control from the impressive adagio beginning of the first movement to the last big chord of the finale.

Particularly thrilling was the long, gradual crescendo and mighty climax in the Prelude to Wagner's Lohengrin. The other excerpts which included the Procession to the Cathedral, the music of the prelude and first scene of the third act, were well executed, and portrayed the vivid pageantry of the concert.

The waltz from Tchaikovsky's ballet suite "The Sleeping Beauty" was played with grace and charm. Following that number was the Algaran Suite by Saint-Saëns. In the movement entitled "Reverie du Soir" one caught the fragrance of a tropical night. The brilliant "March Militaire" from the same suite, was a fitting close to the concert.

Mr. Bear and members of the orchestra have received enviable praise for their achievements in giving to the community music of this high calibre, especially in view of the fact that each musician gives his services gratis. Much credit is due to Mr. Fred Ferry who owns a music library without which the orchestra would find it difficult to function, and to the musicians who come from other towns, some from as far as Pennsylvania.

Others assisting Mr. Bear in making the concert a success were Dr. Merrill Hollingsworth, manager, and Mrs. Walter Spicer, president.

Ravenkamp goes to the head of the Diocesan union after serving three years as vice-president of the Orange county division, prior to which he was district chairman for the northern section of Orange county.

He has resided in California 14 years, all of that time in Orange county. The first five years were spent in Anaheim and Fullerton; then he moved to Santa Ana and now resides at 712 East Fifth street, this city. He is escrow officer for the Security-First National Bank at its Fullerton branch.

Ravenkamp has been active in civic, fraternal and church work, being a past Grand Knight of the Santa Ana council, Knights of Columbus.

The election was held at 3:30 p. m. yesterday in the Los Angeles cathedral.

OLD BOOK TALES BRINGS OUT COMPETITION

When The Register printed a story last week about an old book exactly 100 years old, it brought to light a whole collection of volumes in a Santa Ana family ranging in age up to a religious commentary which was printed in 1557, just 378 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Jenkinson, 2389 Riverside drive, have a dozen or more old books, all more than 100 years old and mostly on religious topics. For the most part, the books were first owned by Mr. Johnson's grandfather, the Rev. J. Westley Johnson of Indiana. When Mr. Johnson's father, also a minister, passed away in 1909, his large library was divided among his children and the Santa Ana couple received the old volumes.

The interesting old religious commentary, remarkably well preserved for such an old book, contains 835 pages and is bound in leather which has partly fallen away with much usage. The type is old English script and hard to read by anyone accustomed to the conventional type of today. A lengthy preface is concluded by the date of publication, 1557, and an elaborate design.

Heading the 24 pages of index is the heading, "An index of table of the most notable things and words contained in this work." The authorship of the book is unknown because the title page and front cover are missing from the volume. Handwritten notes are found throughout the book while marginal notes in type permit easier access to the material contained in the work. The book measures 5 by 7 1/2 inches in size and has fancy initialed first letters for each chapter.

Among other books treasured by the Johnsons are "The Life of Mrs. Sarah Gibson" and many autobiographies. A copy of "Roberto Rules of Order" is known to be more than 100 years old and given to Mrs. Johnson by her father, is another in their collection.

Program Arranged For Brea P-T A.

BREA, March 18.—The monthly meeting of the Brea P-T. A. will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Laurel kindergarten school, according to Mrs. Lucy Weide, secretary.

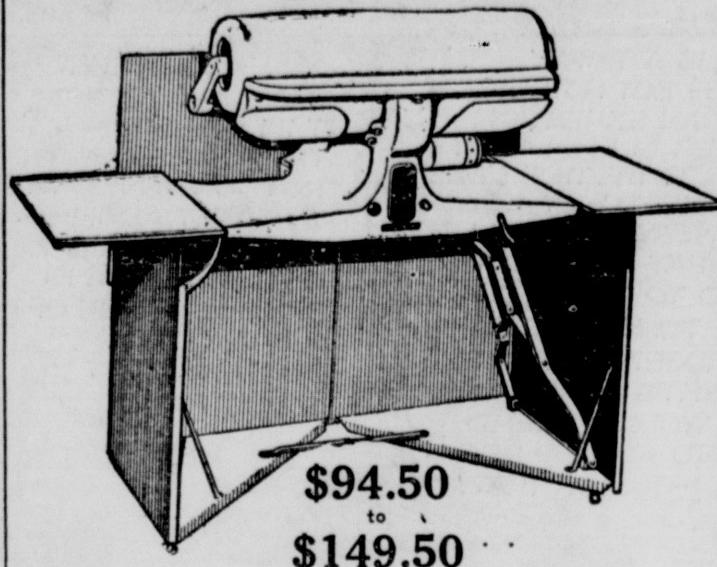

Mrs. R. E. Kemper will address the members, speaking on the topic "The Radio and Motion Pictures, Relative to Future Building." The rhythm class of the Laurel school will present part of the program after which a social hour and refreshments will be enjoyed.

L. A. Firms Negotiating For Laguna Properties

CHAIN CONCERN INTERESTED IN SITE NEAR P. O.

LAGUNA BEACH, March 18.—Several real estate deals involving valuable business property; a large volume of building construction; new shops and stores; record enrollment at the local school, and a heavy influx of homesekers and visitors, are some of the business signs pointing to growth and development as well as returning prosperity, a survey of local business conditions revealed today.

Reported among major real estate deals now being negotiated, is the sale of the Parker property, located opposite Hotel Laguna on the northwest corner of Coast boulevard and Laguna avenue, considered one of the choice business properties in the community, to a well known Los Angeles concern. While the owners declined to discuss the details of the deal, it was admitted that negotiations are under way.

Another major deal brought to light is one having to do with the disposal of the large triangular piece of land located between the post office and the Chamber of Commerce building, owned by two Los Angeles men. Reports have it that a nationally known chain store concern is interested in the property.

Building Increases

The volume of building construction during the next three months promises to top all previous records for a corresponding period, inquiries at the city building inspector's office disclosed today. Two big jobs, the new Lynn theater on Coast boulevard and the new grammar school building on Park avenue, are already under way and are expected to be completed within 90 days. Work also is expected to begin with a few days on the large business structure to be erected by the Consolidated Mortgage company at the corner of Coast boulevard and Ocean avenue, including the remodeling of the front and rear of the bathhouse building. A glance at building permits as well as applications for permits showed that in all parts of Laguna Beach all kinds of residential structures are either under construction or planned in an effort to prepare for the steadily increasing growth of the colony's population.

New stores have opened their doors, others have changed hands, and still others have moved to new locations in order to meet demands for additional space. Included among these are the new bus depot at the Shell service station, the Bernard Meat market at the Red Hen Food Market premises, and the Bronner restaurant on Forest avenue.

New Shops Open

With the recent opening of the Mar Vista Beauty salon at 276 Coast Boulevard, south, the village has not less than five beauty shops in operation. A new shop will be Mauerhan member of the board, who told of developments during the past four weeks in spreading water through work of the SERA in the upper Santa Ana river bottom. Willis Warner, of Huntington Beach, chairman of the board of the County water district, discussed the establishment of water rights, the possibility of importing water into the district and the conservation of water that comes into the district.

Secretary Ickes produced the detailed report on PWA activities demanded by Senator Byrd. One well-posted observer predicts it will raise more ned with the work relief program than a dozen speeches by Huey Long. The dois that actual expenditures in the field will be shown up as shockingly small—especially as contrasted with items of overhead expense. Mr. Ickes' super-caution in approving applications is likely to bounce back on him like a brick from a rubber ball.

Sharp figure the Senate may decide it isn't so much a case of needing more dough as of needing someone else to spend it.

CHIROPRACTIC AUXILIARY

Newly elected officers of Chiropractic auxiliary were in their chairs to conduct the March meeting of that group held in the home of Drs. James and Estelle

Workman, 1905 Valencia street.

The officers were Mrs. Gladys

Buchheim, president; O. A. Linnartz, vice president; Mrs. Carol

Reynolds, secretary, and Mrs. Mabel Read, treasurer.

After an outline for the year's work was read, committees were appointed to put the plans into effect.

Dr. James Workman then talked on the health bills to be presented to their assemblymen, Ted

Craig and James Utt, in regard to them. He also suggested writing to Senator Nelson T. Edwards in regard to bills to appear before the Senate.

Motion pictures of the Century of Progress exposition were shown by Dr. James Workman through the courtesy of a Los Angeles business establishment. This was followed by a short talk by O. A.

Linnartz on executive meetings and on political and scientific matters to be studied.

A copy of Elbert Hubbard's

'Philosophy of Life' was won in a door prize by Mrs. C. R. Perley, while Dr. Workman received the "revolving prize" of a box of groceries. After the program was over, the audience was invited to a reception in honor of Mrs. Gladys

Members made plans to attend a meeting of Orange W. R. C.

scheduled for next Wednesday noon in honor of Mrs. Gladys Mc-

THE SITUATION IN EUROPE

Probably the minds of the world are on the situation in Europe. Hitler has defied the Allies. The other nations have been rearming. England has determined upon that course very rigidly.

Our own United States, which finally was one of the Allies, has increased its military budget 107 per cent. All this, in the light of the promise in the Versailles treaty, emphasized by a special letter written by Clemenceau to Germany, that her disarmament was only preliminary to the disarmament of the other nations. Hitler has ground in justice for his attitude, in that the Allies have flagrantly broken their promises.

France, the traditional enemy, has a most powerful army in Europe, though not as numerically strong as Russia's. The strength of Hitler undoubtedly lies in the known willingness of the German people to wreck everything to obtain their desires.

The other nations cannot afford to hazard a war. If the war itself did not bring chaos, they fear an internal revolution, which would bring it.

We are, in the place of the editorial today, publishing the statement of Mr. Webb Miller, United Press European news manager, on this situation. We believe it will be more valuable to our readers than anything else that can be published.

It follows:

By Webb Miller

Europe is preparing for war. That is a sad word to write, less than 20 years after the greatest catastrophe of history. Yet it is true.

The blinds have been lifted and there can be no further pretence. Adolf Hitler, whatever his following among his countrymen and his reputation abroad, at least has the distinction of bringing the issue into the open. The hope among the advocates of peace now is that the show-down will bring general recognition of the futility of war and lead to peace.

All nations are re-arming, and have either admitted or boasted of it. The allied powers, under the Versailles treaty, agreed to disarm after Germany had scrapped her amendments. Germany's argument today is "You defaulted on your pledge, we fulfilled ours. You have scrapped the treaty, so why shouldn't we prepare to defend ourselves?"

Millions in Europe are asking questions about the next war. They cannot be answered, but the writer, on the basis of his observations of European trends during the last 17 years, makes the following replies to various questions.

Q. Is a European war coming? A. It seems inevitable eventually, barring a miracle. That is the reason why every European nation is arming on an unprecedented scale. The rulers of the various countries are convinced war is coming.

Q. How soon will it come? A. My guess is not sooner than five years, but probably within ten. H. G. Wells guesses 1940. Gen. Eric Ludendorff, suggested as commander of the new German military machines, says within a year. David Lloyd George thinks within ten years. Edouard Benes, veteran foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, thinks that 1935 will decide the fate of Europe."

Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy said last August that war is a possibility and may break out at any minute.

"We seem to be drifting towards war," said Lord Cecil, principal British exponent of peace and champion of the League of Nations, and "I have no formula for peace," said Sir Austen Chamberlain, former member of the war cabinet.

(The above statements have been made in public within the last six months.)

Q. What does Germany's decision mean in a military way? A. Germany's army numerically will be the biggest in Europe, outside of Russia. Within a few years, it will be the most powerful in military value on the continent, because it possesses the greatest chemical organization, the finest industrial organization and the most efficient and largest commercial air force.

Q. What will Germany's decision mean diplomatically? A. It is likely to tighten the understanding between France and Soviet Russia. It also would tend to draw England and France closer together, as well as France and Italy and France and the Little Entente (Romania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia).

Q. What else does it mean? A. The armaments race already started will be intensified. What little reliance the nations placed on the League's treaties and agreements for peaceful settlement of disputes will be diminished greatly by Germany's repudiation of the Versailles treaty. Resumption of the pre-war system of the division of Europe into hostile camps and military alliances will be accelerated.

Q. Why did Germany decide to announce at this time her rearmament program? A. Rearmament was one of the original planks of the Nazi platform. Hitler seized this moment because England announced a general increase in armaments and France announced an increase in her conscript army term. Hitler's sudden announcement was designed to cut the ground from under England and France, who planned to extract extra concessions from Germany in return for their recognition of Germany's present rearmament program, in an effort to limit it.

Q. What is Germany's reason for rearmament? A. Hitler quoted Stanley Baldwin, British conservative leader, in a speech defending the recent British white paper: "A land which is not willing to take the necessary precautionary measures for its defense will never have power in this world, neither moral nor material power." Hitler wants both. He wants to regain a place in the concert of nations commensurate with Germany's potential power. He wants to efface the post war inferiority complex. He wants to be able to impose the national will. He has the examples of Italy's and Russia's success to that effect.

Q. Will Germany get away with it? A. Undoubtedly. For a while relations with its neighbors probably will not be pleasant. But when it is strong militarily Germany is likely to find friends as did Italy and Russia in similar circumstances.

Q. Has Germany justification for its decision? A. Germany's ex-enemies obligated themselves in the Versailles treaty to disarm. They failed to fulfill these obligations. Instead, they steadily increased their armaments.

Q. What hopeful elements exist? A. No nation wants war. All know that even a successful war is ruinous. Dictators know that losing a war will result in the extinction of themselves and their regime. The danger of war may become so imminent as to frighten nations into action toward peace.

ARE ENDOWMENTS DESTINED TO WITHER AND END?

In the Journal of the Association of College Professors, Robert L. Kelley, the secretary of the association, discusses the future of the privately endowed colleges. He questions the statement so often heard in these days that the disappearance of great fortunes and great profits will seriously affect future endowments.

He maintains that comparatively little of the profits of rich men has gone into educational institutions and philanthropies. Most of the gifts to such institutions and services have come from those whose profits are in the lower brackets.

R. Doane, in "The Measure of American Wealth," points out that in 1929, the year destined to mark the time when profits were greatest in our history, over a million people paid an income tax in excess of $5000. The aggregate income of these income tax payers exceeded 20 billions of dollars.

These income tax payers were permitted to deduct 15 per cent from their income for philanthropic gifts. Yet such deductions amounted only to $308,000,000, which was only 1.9 per cent of their income. The rest was 1.9 per cent of their income.

This makes it very clear that not much of the large profits of industry or speculation went for philanthropy. And it is quite probable that the bulk of the giving came from the moderately well-to-do, rather than from the excessively rich.

If this be the case, and it undoubtedly is, privately financed philanthropy need not be so anxious. Anyway, as one has said, all good causes are supported by organized poverty.

Britain's Foreign Trade

Christian Science Monitor

In 1934 Great Britain regained the position of being the first exporting country in the world. The value of her exports increased £30,000,000 over that of 1933, during which year the first rise from the low levels of the slump had appeared—a small increase of £3,000,000. The first signs of returning prosperity in Britain two years ago were visible only in the home market. Since there there has been a slow but continuous rebuilding of her exports to foreign countries.

But there can be little hope of Great Britain's or any other country's getting back to the 1929 level until trade restrictions are removed. Restrictions produce restrictions, and there appears no escape from the vicious circle.

Italy found itself with a large adverse balance of trade in 1934, and saw no course open but to restrict imports. Italy has accordingly imposed further reductions on import quotas which will have the effect of reducing nearly all the classes of goods brought from Britain by from 10 to 35 per cent. If Britain were able and willing to take more from Italy, Italy could take more from Britain and so round the circle of the nations.

It is true, Great Britain has succeeded in making agreements with various countries which increase special kinds of trade, and it is mainly in consequence of this extension of the area of free trade that Britain has been able to increase its exports. World recovery lies in wider and fuller recognition of the facts implied in this experience.

The Aged Have Friends in Many Legislatures

Riverside Enterprise

Protecting the aged poor through some sort of pension system is under general consideration throughout the country. In large part probably this is a reaction to the well-organized publicity given the Townsend plan. But it is noteworthy that while several state legislatures have gone on record as willing that the Federal Government should adopt the Townsend plan and pay the bills, a much greater number have under consideration proposals for state old age pensions.

A survey conducted by the American public Welfare association reported that bills proposing some form of care for the aged poor are more numerous than those having to do with any other form of legislation. In 40 of the 48 legislatures that have been in session 238 old age pension bills have been introduced.

Out of so much discussion policies will take shape that will make more tolerable the lot of those who find themselves without adequate means when old age comes.

Fliers Over Aegean Sea Revive The Stories Of Old

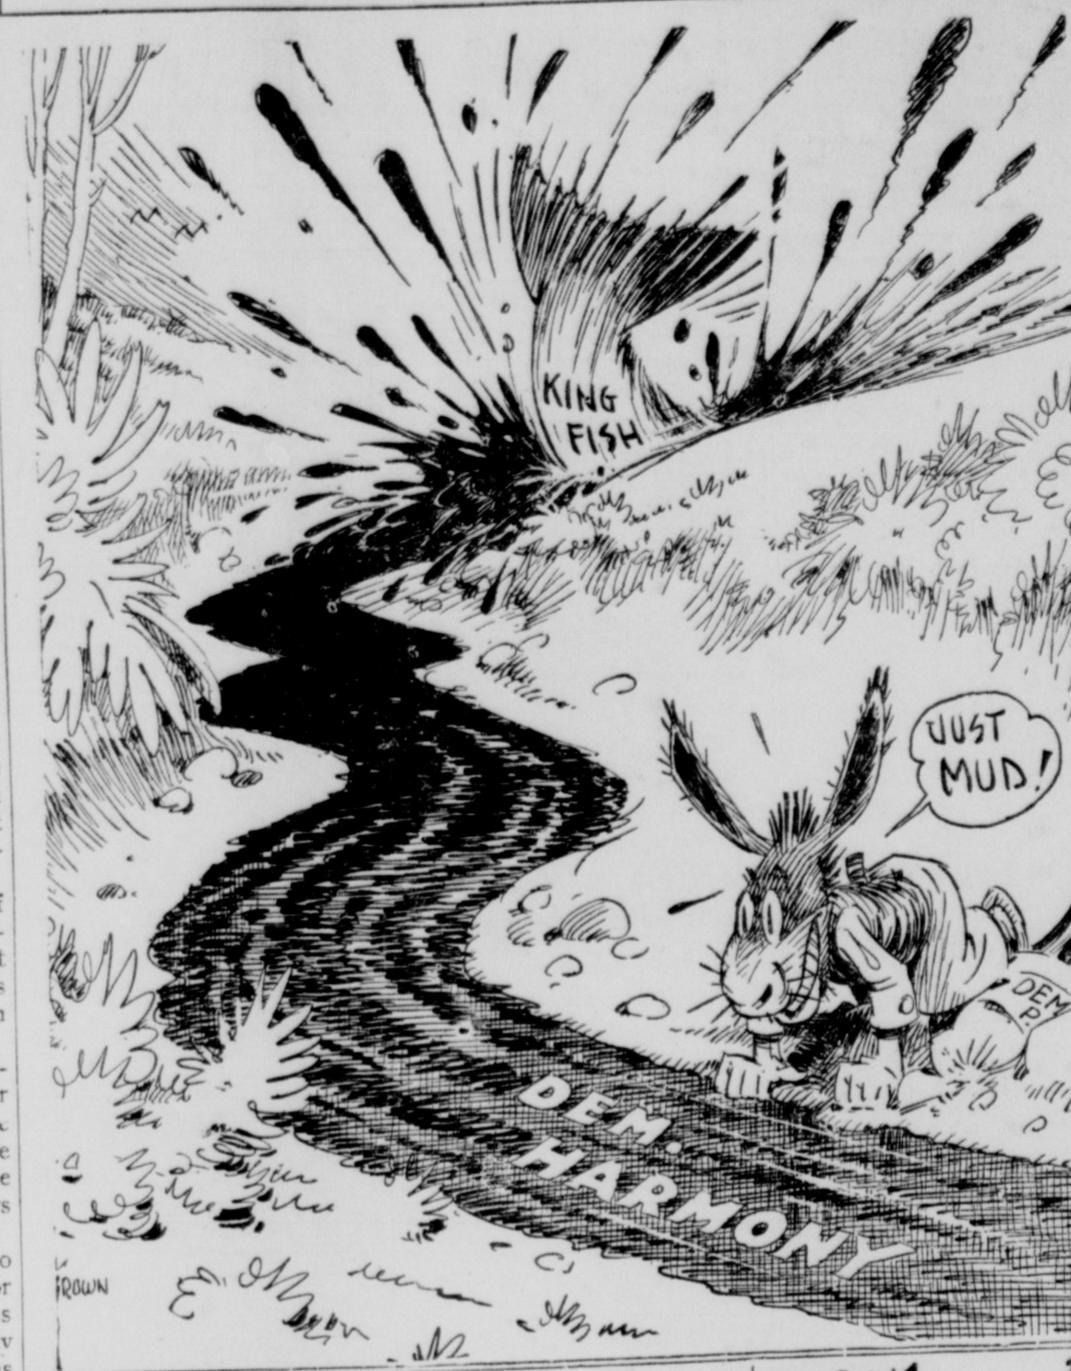

San Bernardino Sun

What a strange mingling of modern and classical names occurs in the day's news. Out over the Aegean sea soar fighting planes from Athens, pursuing Greek rebels. How many strange things have happened in that neighborhood and how much it has contributed to the world's store of adventure stories!

It was over that very sea that first mention of flying men was made away back in that misty border myth and history. Daedalus, greatest of the Grecian craftsmen of his time, had fled to that same Crete now the refuge of Grecian rebels. And getting into trouble there also, he made wings for himself and his son, Icarus, with which to fly back across the waters. Icarus cracked up. He tried to make a stratosphere flight and got singed in the sun, the ancient poet reported.

What whoppers those same poets would have been accused of by their contemporaries, if they had visioned whole squadrons of flying men in huge winged ships carrying tons of bombs.

More Truth Than Poetry

TO MARCH

April has its kindly hours.
May is redolent of Spring
When among the budding bowers
Happy birds begin to sing
Late in June the gleaming daisies
May be found the pastures through
But I can't sing any praises,
Dreary, drizzling month, of you.

Every kind of wicked weather
Follows in your howling train.
Constantly you bring together
Snow and hall and sleet and rain.
Always you are temperamental
As you sweep across the stage—
For an instant mild and gentle,
Then consumed with savage rage.

Without any word of warning,
If a day dawns bright and warm,
You dispense a glorious morning
With a bitter, biting storm.
Blinding rain falls pitter-patter.
Then all nature wears a smile
And the dragging storm clouds scatter—
But for just a little while.

There is neither sense nor reason
In your wild erratic course;
Yet through season after season,
Quite devoid of all remorse,
Evil-minded, base and vicious,
Still you boldly carry on,
Unrelenting and capricious—
I'll rejoice when you are gone.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

A LENTEN SEASON FOR POLITICAL PARTIES

The holy season of Lent is upon us. The holy season of Lent is upon us.

It is a time of spiritual stock-taking. While we run deliberately abstain from indulgences that normally retard the finest functioning of body and spirit. We withdraw, as best we can, from the distractions that daily beset us and subject to critical reassessment our habits, our motives and our aspirations.

Quite aside from its religious significance, the observance of Lent is a profoundly important tradition.

It is good for institutions as well as for individuals to observe this sort of stocktaking.

Our political parties, in particular, could profit just now from a serious observance of Lenten meditation.

The acid of events has thrown all our traditional parties into solution. Democrats and Republicans alike need to take their bearings in the midst of the current confusion.

The old orthodoxies of party have seemingly gone from the minds of leaders as they clutch at this and

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

LEFT BACK

What has been done to help the child that was left back last promotion day? Merely keeping him in the same grade, giving him the same lessons again, is not going to help him. Few children benefit by repeating a grade. Most of them would better be promoted along with their companions. Only those who lost work by absence, or immaturity (by which token you can know they were improperly graded in the first place) get anything out of repeating a grade. The backward child needs a new teacher, and in the same grade for some sound reason, change the teacher if possible. Change the method of instruction. Present the course from a new point of view in relation to this child. Make him feel
